

Join NPRPF for an Offsite Tour featuring The Quaker Parrots of San Leon

For the first time NPRPF Parrot Festival is offering an off-site trip from the Doubletree Hotel IAH. Monday January 23, 2012. 8 AM We plan to visit the small seaside community of San Leon. San Leon embraces the Quaker Parakeets and has made them the symbol their town. We will visit know nesting sites, have lunch at “The Green Parrot Bar and Grill”, tour Railean rum distillery, and a liquor store for “Quaker” rum. The trip is $50.00 per person and includes the trip, tour fees, and lunch. Be sure to bring your cameras.

As you walk into The Green Parrot a maze of painted docks cover an ocean floor and the walls are plastered with seascape murals. Local artist Gary Holman, who’s responsible for wall art all over Clear Lake and Houston, painted the restaurant from top to bottom. The wood flooring, painted to look like the ocean, was added during the post-Hurricane Ike restoration process — fitting, given the establishment flooded with six feet of water during the hurricane.

<http://adamdonaghey.wordpress.com/2010/06/07/the-green-parrot-bar-grill-sunny-san-leons-own-slice-of-parrot-dise/>

My humble distillery is located in a sleepy little town along the shores of Galveston Bay in San Leon, Texas. Once a stronghold for the swashbuckling pirate Jean Lafitte, today San Leon is a “small drinking community with a large fishing problem”.

The area is also home to a thriving population of wild parrots called Monk Parakeets, which we have adopted as our official RAILEAN mascot.

<http://www.railean.com/>

Tammy will seign your bottles of rum.

To sign up for the trip, a trip registraion form is attached. Please complete and mail with your check to Cheryl Rose; PO Box 335; Altair, Texas 77412;
OR sign up on our website www.parrotfestival.org.

We must have a minimum of 12 people.

As with most wildlife tours we can not guarantee that you will see live parrots, but the chances are pretty good.